

she wanted a paper town so he gave her an endless sky with four brick walls she built a balloon to take her up up up but he staked it to the ground and replaced his heart with glass so she could see all the little fires that burned only for her then he bought a boat for when she jumped her paper flesh would soak floating waiting so he could save her yet when he dived into the waves his glass heart filled all those little fires were gone and she watched as he slowly sank to the bottom of the sea